COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course offers a sweeping survey of United States history following Reconstruction, a period of time critical to the emergence of the nation as a domestic and international power. Together, we will explore the cultural, political, economic, and social pressures that spurred historical change from the end of Reconstruction in 1877 to the election of Barack Obama in 2008. Recognizing that events that unfolded beyond American borders at times had a profound effect on life in the United States—and, indeed, that American culture, business, and foreign policy influenced world affairs—we will place our story in a global context while retaining a tight focus on the United States. In addition to introducing students to modern United States history, this course will help students develop introductory-level skills in the discipline of history, including: inquiry-driven historical analysis, interpretation of primary sources, information literacy in historical research, and persuasive written and oral expression.

ASSIGNED READINGS

We have one required book for this course, American Horizons U.S. History in a Global Context Since 1865 by Michael Schaller, et. al. (ISBN 978-0199389346) which is available at the bookstore as well as from online retailers. All other course readings will be available on TLEARN. The assigned films will be available for viewing through TriniTV.

COURSE FORMAT

This course consists of a mix of lectures and in-class activities, which will generally take place on Mondays and Wednesdays, as well as seminar-style discussions, which will generally take place on Fridays. I expect you to have completed the assigned reading prior to each class so that you can come to each of our meetings ready to explore the day's topic in depth.

Throughout the course, we will examine a variety of primary documents and multimedia resources, including historical newspaper articles, letters, speeches, films, songs, artifacts, and firsthand accounts, to immerse ourselves in the debates and developments that shaped the modern nation. Our discussion sections will devote significant time to exploring and evaluating these sources. You must bring the assigned readings to each discussion meeting.

The textbook and other secondary readings will supplement, rather than duplicate, the in-class lectures. These readings will supply background information to help you interpret and understand the primary documents and media resources, and to help you contextualize the material we cover during the lectures. In order for the class to be successful, you should complete all of the assigned readings, attend lecture, and participate actively in our discussions of the material.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Participation: This course requires active, informed participation in discussion, lecture, and all in-class activities as well as careful engagement with the readings.

Reading Responses: The reading response papers will help you prepare for participation in our discussion. These reading responses are due on the following discussion days:

Week 3: 1/26	Week 9: 3/9
Week 4: 2/2	Week 10: 3/23
Week 7: 2/23	Week 13: 4/13

You must turn in three of the six responses. I will not accept more than three responses. However, you get to choose which weeks to skip (though this does not excuse you from reading or participating in our class discussion). I will provide guidelines for the reading response papers in class and on TLEARN.

Reading Quizzes: We will have three quizzes on the assigned reading. These quizzes will take place on the following days: 2/2, 3/26, and 4/13. Each quiz will consist of five multiple choice questions drawn from the textbook reading and a brief essay question on one of the primary source documents.

Midterm Exam: The midterm exam will consist of short-answer identification questions based on key terms from my lectures (historical figures, places, events, and concepts), a short multiple-choice section based on chapters 20-23 of the textbook, and a broad essay question that focuses on the major themes of the class and the course readings. The midterm will be given in class on February 26.

Life in the Vietnam Era Mini-Research Paper: I will share a selection of document packets that reflect on aspects of American life during the 1960s and 1970s. You will select the packet that you find most interesting, read through the documents carefully, and then conduct your own research into the ProQuest Historical Newspapers archive to find at least two more related primary sources. You will then write a 3-4 page analysis of the historical moment that your packet addresses based on the primary sources. This assignment will build on the primary source analyses we will do in class and will prepare you for the final exam, which will feature a primary source analysis as one of its core components. The essays will be due in class on April 6.

Final Exam: The final exam will give you a chance to demonstrate what you have learned from the assigned readings and films, discussions, and the course lectures. It will also be a chance for you to think synthetically about how the different themes of the course fit together. It will consist of short-answer identification questions based on key terms, a short primary source analysis, a short essay, and a comprehensive essay. You will have a choice of essay questions and identifications. The final exam will be held on Wednesday, May 2 from 8:30am-11:30am in Chapman 235.

Policies for Written Work

Formatting. All written work must:

- be double-spaced in Times New Roman 12-point font
- have one-inch margins on each side
- include page numbers
- be submitted in .doc (preferred) or .pdf format on TLEARN

If an assignment does not meet these formatting guidelines, it will not be read or graded.

Citations. All sources MUST be cited according to Chicago Notes-Bibliography guidelines. Citation guidelines are available at <http://lib.trinity.edu/lib2/cite.php>. You can also consult the 16th edition of the Chicago Manual of Style, available at Coates Library in the reference section and online through the library catalog.

Late Work. Late papers will be penalized 2 grades per day (e.g. A- to B, B to C+). If you think you will not be able to turn in an assignment on time, talk to me as soon as possible so that we can arrange an extension if appropriate. Extensions are granted at my discretion; requests made within 24 hours of the due date will be granted only in exceptional circumstances. In ALL cases, late work is a better option than plagiarism, which will be considered a violation of the academic honor code (see page 4 for more details about the honor code).

GRADING

The final course grade will be determined as follows:

Reading Response Papers:	15%	Quizzes:	10%
Primary Source Analysis:	20%	Midterm Exam:	15%
Participation:	20%	Final Exam:	20%

ACADEMIC HONOR CODE

All students are covered by a policy that prohibits dishonesty in academic work. Students who are under the Honor Code are required to pledge all written work that is submitted for a grade: “On my honor, I have neither given nor received any unauthorized assistance on this work” and their signature. The pledge may be abbreviated ‘pledged’ with a signature. The specifics of the Honor Code, its underlying philosophy, and the norms for sanctioning can all be found at: http://www.trinity.edu/departments/academic_affairs/honor_code/index.htm.

If you have any doubt about whether an action violates the Honor Code, please email me before submitting your essays or research project. If you are struggling, overwhelmed, or confused please contact me! I am here to help you in the course and guide you through the material. I understand that personal circumstances or unforeseen events can sometimes interfere with your academic work; I will keep any concerns confidential and work with you to ensure your best possible performance in the course.

OTHER COURSE POLICIES

Students With Disabilities

If you have a documented disability and will need accommodations in this class, please bring your accommodation letter to me early in the semester so we can discuss how I can best meet your needs. All discussions will remain confidential. If you have not already registered with Student Accessibility Services, contact the office at 999-7411 or SAS@trinity.edu. You must be registered with SAS before I can provide accommodation.

Class Conduct

Respect your fellow students and instructor. Do not be disruptive. Turn off phones and do not text in class. If you text during class, your participation grade for the semester will be reduced. You may use laptops for taking notes or look at course texts, but if you use them for activities not related to class, you will not be able to use them at all in class. If you are late, please come in quietly. Consistent lateness will result in a lowered course grade, as will violations of any of the above-mentioned aspects of class conduct.

Attendance:

Attendance is mandatory. You must have a valid excuse for missing class (serious illness/injury, family emergency, etc.). Absences will be excused only with a doctor’s note or a letter from your dean or coach. If you miss more than three classes or are consistently late, your final grade will be reduced (at my discretion). If you need to miss a class, please notify me. Absence from class does not excuse you from reading or writing assignments. If you must be absent on the day of a quiz, let me know as soon as possible so that I can provide you with a makeup quiz. You are responsible for getting notes from a classmate for any lectures or discussions that you miss, and I encourage you to come to my office hours as well to go over anything in those notes that you wish to discuss or about which you have any questions.
